Armed Forces Day Celebration

Lincoln's oldest veteran gets a key to the city

STANFORD – The oldest veteran in Lincoln County brought tears to the eyes of many as he was honored, alongside several others, during the first-ever Armed Forces Day Celebration at the Lincoln County Public Library on Saturday.

Eric Blanchett, 101, was given an honorary plaque for his services, as well as a surprise gift from Stanford Mayor Eddie Carter – a key to the city.

More than 50 people, including Ky. Representative David Meade and Judge-Executive Jim Adams, turned out for the celebration on May 16 to honor veterans and active duty members of the United States Armed Forces.

Sponsored in part by Heritage Hostage, the event was kicked off by LCPL's Adult Program Director, Jimmie Lou Abney, who introduced the honorary guest speaker, retired Brigadier General Howard Hunt.

Retired Brigadier General Howard Hunt was the guest speaker for the Armed Forces Day Celebration held at the Lincoln County Public Library on Saturday.

"In my 34 years of service I've had a lot of opportunity to work with every branch of service," Hunt said. "It's what we call Total Force. When we bring all of those qualities and history to one fight, there is no stronger force on the planet."

Hunt said he has many friends of all uniforms and as different as they may be, they're all alike in one way – they are brothers and sisters in the profession of arms.

"When we come together as one armed force, all of those different uniforms form what I call the fabric of our nation and that fabric is so strong, it cannot be torn," Hunt said. "Why do we do what we do? Its for the person on our right, the person on our left, the person in front of us, and the person behind us – so that they may live in the greatest country in the world with freedom and liberty."

Hunt touched lightly on sinking troop morale and the low numbers of enlistments in

Stanford approves bid to replace police, fire roof

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – The City of Stanford has approved a bid to replace the roof of the Stanford police and fire building.

The damage to the roof – which was determined to be caused by severe winter weather – allowed water to leak through the ceiling on Feb. 21 and damaged police equipment, including six laptops.

The police department is currently operating out of two rooms in Stanford City Hall while it awaits the new roof.

Mayor Eddie Carter told the city council during a special called meeting on May 12 that the insurance company has agreed to pay $56,680 to replace the roof and the city has a chance to save some money if they approve the lowest bid of $42,661 from Kalkreuth Roofing and Sheet Metal out of Lexington.

"The insurance company told us if we want to go to a better roof, we have a right to do that," Carter said. "All of the bids we've received are from reputable companies."

Steve Mitchell, a representative for KalKreuth, brought several example materials to help explain the TPO (thermoplastic polyolefin) Roofing System to the council.

"You're going to end up with a 20-year roof. You have such a great slope already, that roof is going to last a long time," Mitchell said. "The first two years, if you have any problems, you call Kalkreuth and we come fix it. After that, you call Firestone and Firestone will

Board of education votes to build new central office

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – The Lincoln County Board of Education has voted to build a new central office – nine months after flames destroyed a large portion of the original structure on Danville Avenue.

The decision to construct a brand new building was made during the board's monthly meeting on Thursday – but not without a lengthy debate.

The board voted 4-1 to move forward with the planning of a new building, with Denny Hogue voting against it.

Concept drawings and ideas were reviewed once more with the timeline of each project and the urgency of a permanent home for the district's technology hub as main topics of debate.

Chairman Tom Blankenship said after nine months, its time for the board to take action on the situation.

"I can assure you that every body on the board is concerned about technology. We're not ready to make recommendations for that tonight but I know Mrs. Hatter will come through on that," Blankenship said.

One community member in attendance was concerned about the safety of students during the construction and movement of large materials as well as the cost.

"I just feel like it isn't safe and is it the best choice economically?" former educator Nancy Hill asked.

Eric Loy, a representative for the district's architecture consulting company Sherman Carter Barnhart, said the new building would cost approximately $3.7 million but that is just a budgetary figure at this point.

"That's not tax money at all," Blankenship said. "This is all paid by the insurance."

Superintendent Karen Hatter added that the insurance company first has to approve the plan.

"Of course, if they didn't approve it then we'd have to reconsider," Hatter said.

Loy added that safety fencing would be put up around the entire perimeter and the buses would use a separate entrance to drop off students.

"This is just an idea, it hasn't been finalized by architects," Hatter said.

The board reviewed the pros and cons of the new building as well as the previously discussed option to

Hustonville councilwoman resigns after two months

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

HUSTONVILLE – A recently appointed member of the Hustonville City Council has resigned from her position.

Councilwoman Sheila McCoy provided a letter of resignation to the city council, which went into effect on Tuesday, May 4.

McCoy – wife of Hustonville Police Chief Fred McCoy – was appointed to the council in February after councilman Chris Couch vacated his seat to pursue another job.

No reason was given by McCoy for the resignation, according to Mayor David Peyton.

"I really think Sheila just stepped up because nobody else did," Peyton said. "The last time we advertised to fill a vacant seat we got no other responses."

Peyton said he's hoping to have better luck with responses this time around.

"It's a small town so it's hard sometimes to get people involved," he said.

The same process that brought forth McCoy's appointment to the council will be used to fill her spot, Peyton said.

The council is requesting that city-residents who are interested in filling the seat write and submit a short narrative stating why they want to serve on the council.

"We'll review those submissions at the next city council meeting," Peyton said.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, June 2.

Congratulations to Tiandra Shantai Hocker who won in the regional track meet. She will be going to the state tournament at the University of Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Givens and daughter of Lexington recently visited Mrs. Sara Givens.

Miss Carolyn Gooch has returned to her home after vacationing in Stone Mountain, Ga., with her sister, Mrs. Jo Alice Johnson and family.

Dr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Suter and son, LaVante Suter of San Antonio, Texas, spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David (Margo) Caldwell. They also visited his parents, Elder and Mrs. Robert (Cammie) Coulter and family. While here, Dr. Suter had a surprise birthday party cookout whereas they were surrounded by several relatives and friends.

Miss Kourtney Gooch of Lexington visited her mother, Ms. Tonya Simpson.

Mrs. Barthenia Brown attended the wedding ceremony of Miss Jacqui Butler, daughter of Mr. Marvin Butler and the late Dr. Anne Stewart Butler. Miss Jacqui Butler and Mr. Chase North exchanged wedding vows in Chattanooga, Tenn. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Chase North!

Thought for the week: A generous man will prosper; he who refreshes others will himself be refreshed.

HIGHLAND UNITED METHODIST CHURCH NEWS

Sunday, May 17, was another day of celebration, thanksgiving, and worship at Highland UMC. It's the time of year for graduations. We recognized one official graduate and one unofficial one. Victoria Paige Watson, daughter of Debbie (Morgan) Watson, graduated from Eastern Kentucky University with a Bachelor Degree in Forensic Science. Also recognized was Doug May as we have watched him "graduate" from bed to wheelchair to walker and now to cane. The church is very thankful to our Lord for both of these members' accomplishments.

The prayer list continues to grow. Added this week were Jeff Young and Margaret Tillett (surgery on face). To keep current on the written prayer list available each Sunday, please inform Rev. Scholtz or Karen Davis who you would like our church to pray for.

There is an exciting time which begins this Wednesday, and every Wednesday night for six weeks for anyone wishing to study and dig deeper into their spiritual lives. Bro. Quen will be starting a couple's study, "Psychology of Unbelief," at the home of Rebecca and Chaz Garcia beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Babysitting arrangements have not yet been ironed out so any couple with children should contact Rev. Scholtz or Rebecca or Chaz before Wednesday for the care of their children during study time.

At the same hour, 7 p.m. each Wednesday, Becky Scholtz will begin a study at the church for others who would like to study the Methodist Heritage and Faith. Each class will last about one hour. Even if you are not a member of Highland UMC, you are invited and encouraged to join us. If you would like more information on these studies, Rev. Scholtz can be reached at (859) 319-3416. Or contact Becky, Rebecca, or Chaz.

"Memorial Sunday" will be observed this coming Sunday, May 24. During worship service, deceased loved ones since last Memorial Day will be honored. A flower will be placed into a bouquet by a loved one of each deceased as their picture is shown by slide show when the name is read. In the past, this has always been a very reverent time in our church.

At 2 p.m. at the Highland cemetery, a Military Memorial Service will be held. Each year the Caswell Saufley Honor Guard is a part of this service. This year a very special presentation will also be made. Come join us for this honorary occasion.

One more announcement has finally been put into works. Bro. Quentin has printed a survey for members to voluntarily complete. Since coming to Highland UMC, he has taken great interest in the past, present, and future plans for this church. This survey asks each member's opinion in three areas of concern. He wants honest answers in order to know, as a leader, which ideas the members are willing to work toward.

If a member's concern is not listed on this survey, he asks that each concern be addressed on the back of the survey. Copies of this survey are available for any members who were absent this week. No deadline is set for voluntarily completing the survey.

Since our in-house poet, JoAnn Elliot, was unable to read her Mother's Day poem last week, she was given the opportunity to do so today. We always enjoy her God-given talent of writing beautiful poems.

Once again this Sunday, several children enjoyed children's church with Scot and Dawn Cheetham. They always run back up after services with excitement and joy on their precious faces. Thanks goes to Dawn and Scot!

Bro. Scholtz's message was "The Crossing." He spoke of the crossing of the Red Sea in Exodus 14, the crossing of the Jordan River in Joshua 3, and the crossings we face during difficult and uncertain times in our lives. The Israelites crossing the Red Sea were losing faith in God. They were grumbling and complaining about their inconveniences and discomforts. They had lost their focus on God. They stood on the dry shore UNTIL He divided the waters. However, the Israelites crossing the Jordan River never doubted that the Lord would help them. They stepped into the water BEFORE the Lord dried the riverbed to enable their safe crossing. Sometimes God provides no clear solution to our difficulties or problems UNTIL we trust Him and move ahead, with faith and courage, knowing that he is already out in front of us guiding our way. Take that first step. Keep your focus on him so you don't start sinking like Peter (Matthew 14:22-32). Don't be afraid. Just stand firm and watch the Lord rescue you today. The Lord himself will fight for you. Just stay calm. (Ex 14:13.) Even in times of discouragement and despair, God is working out his plan. He protects and guides us; we must trust and follow him.

The choir practiced after worship service in preparation for Memorial Sunday, and then headed downstairs for the weekly fellowship meal.

Come join us on Sunday morning at Highland UMC to fellowship with one another. The "one-room" Sunday School lesson starts at 10 a.m. and worship service begins at 11 a.m. A fellowship meal for everyone is shared every Sunday after the service. All are welcome.

STANFORD NAZARENE CHURCH NEWS

By Buford Edwards II

Our mission at Stanford Nazarene Church is to share the gospel message of Jesus Christ to all the world and to be a place of healing and hope to all in need. Come as you are, Jesus will meet you there!

Sunday morning, we were blessed by the singing and worshiping and challenged by the Word through Bro. Buford's message from Daniel 12 on the subject "Outsmarting God!" The blessings continued to flow Sunday evening as we celebrated the deliverance of the Lord and lifted our voices through song and testimony as well as the sharing of the Word by Youth Pastor, Rev. Dennis Hasty.

Join us Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. for our "Book Club." We are finishing up a study on the Book of Daniel and seeking the Lord's will for our next study. The youth have powerful services as well as classes for our children. It's a busy place on Wednesday, come check it out.

The church is working hard on year two of the "Five Year Plan." We are actively raising funds to purchase a church van and pay off the debt on the fellowship hall. If you would like to donate to the cause, you can drop off a donation at any service or even mail in a donation. Just remember to write "Five Year Plan," somewhere (memo field of check or envelope of cash) in order for it to be properly designated.

Mark your summer calendars now! The 2105 Pack the Pew Sunday will be Sunday, June 28, with morning services followed by a fellowship meal. Also, on Saturday, July 11 we will be having our 2015 Vacation Bible School. Backyard Ministries will also be providing food and inflatables immediately after the VBS program.

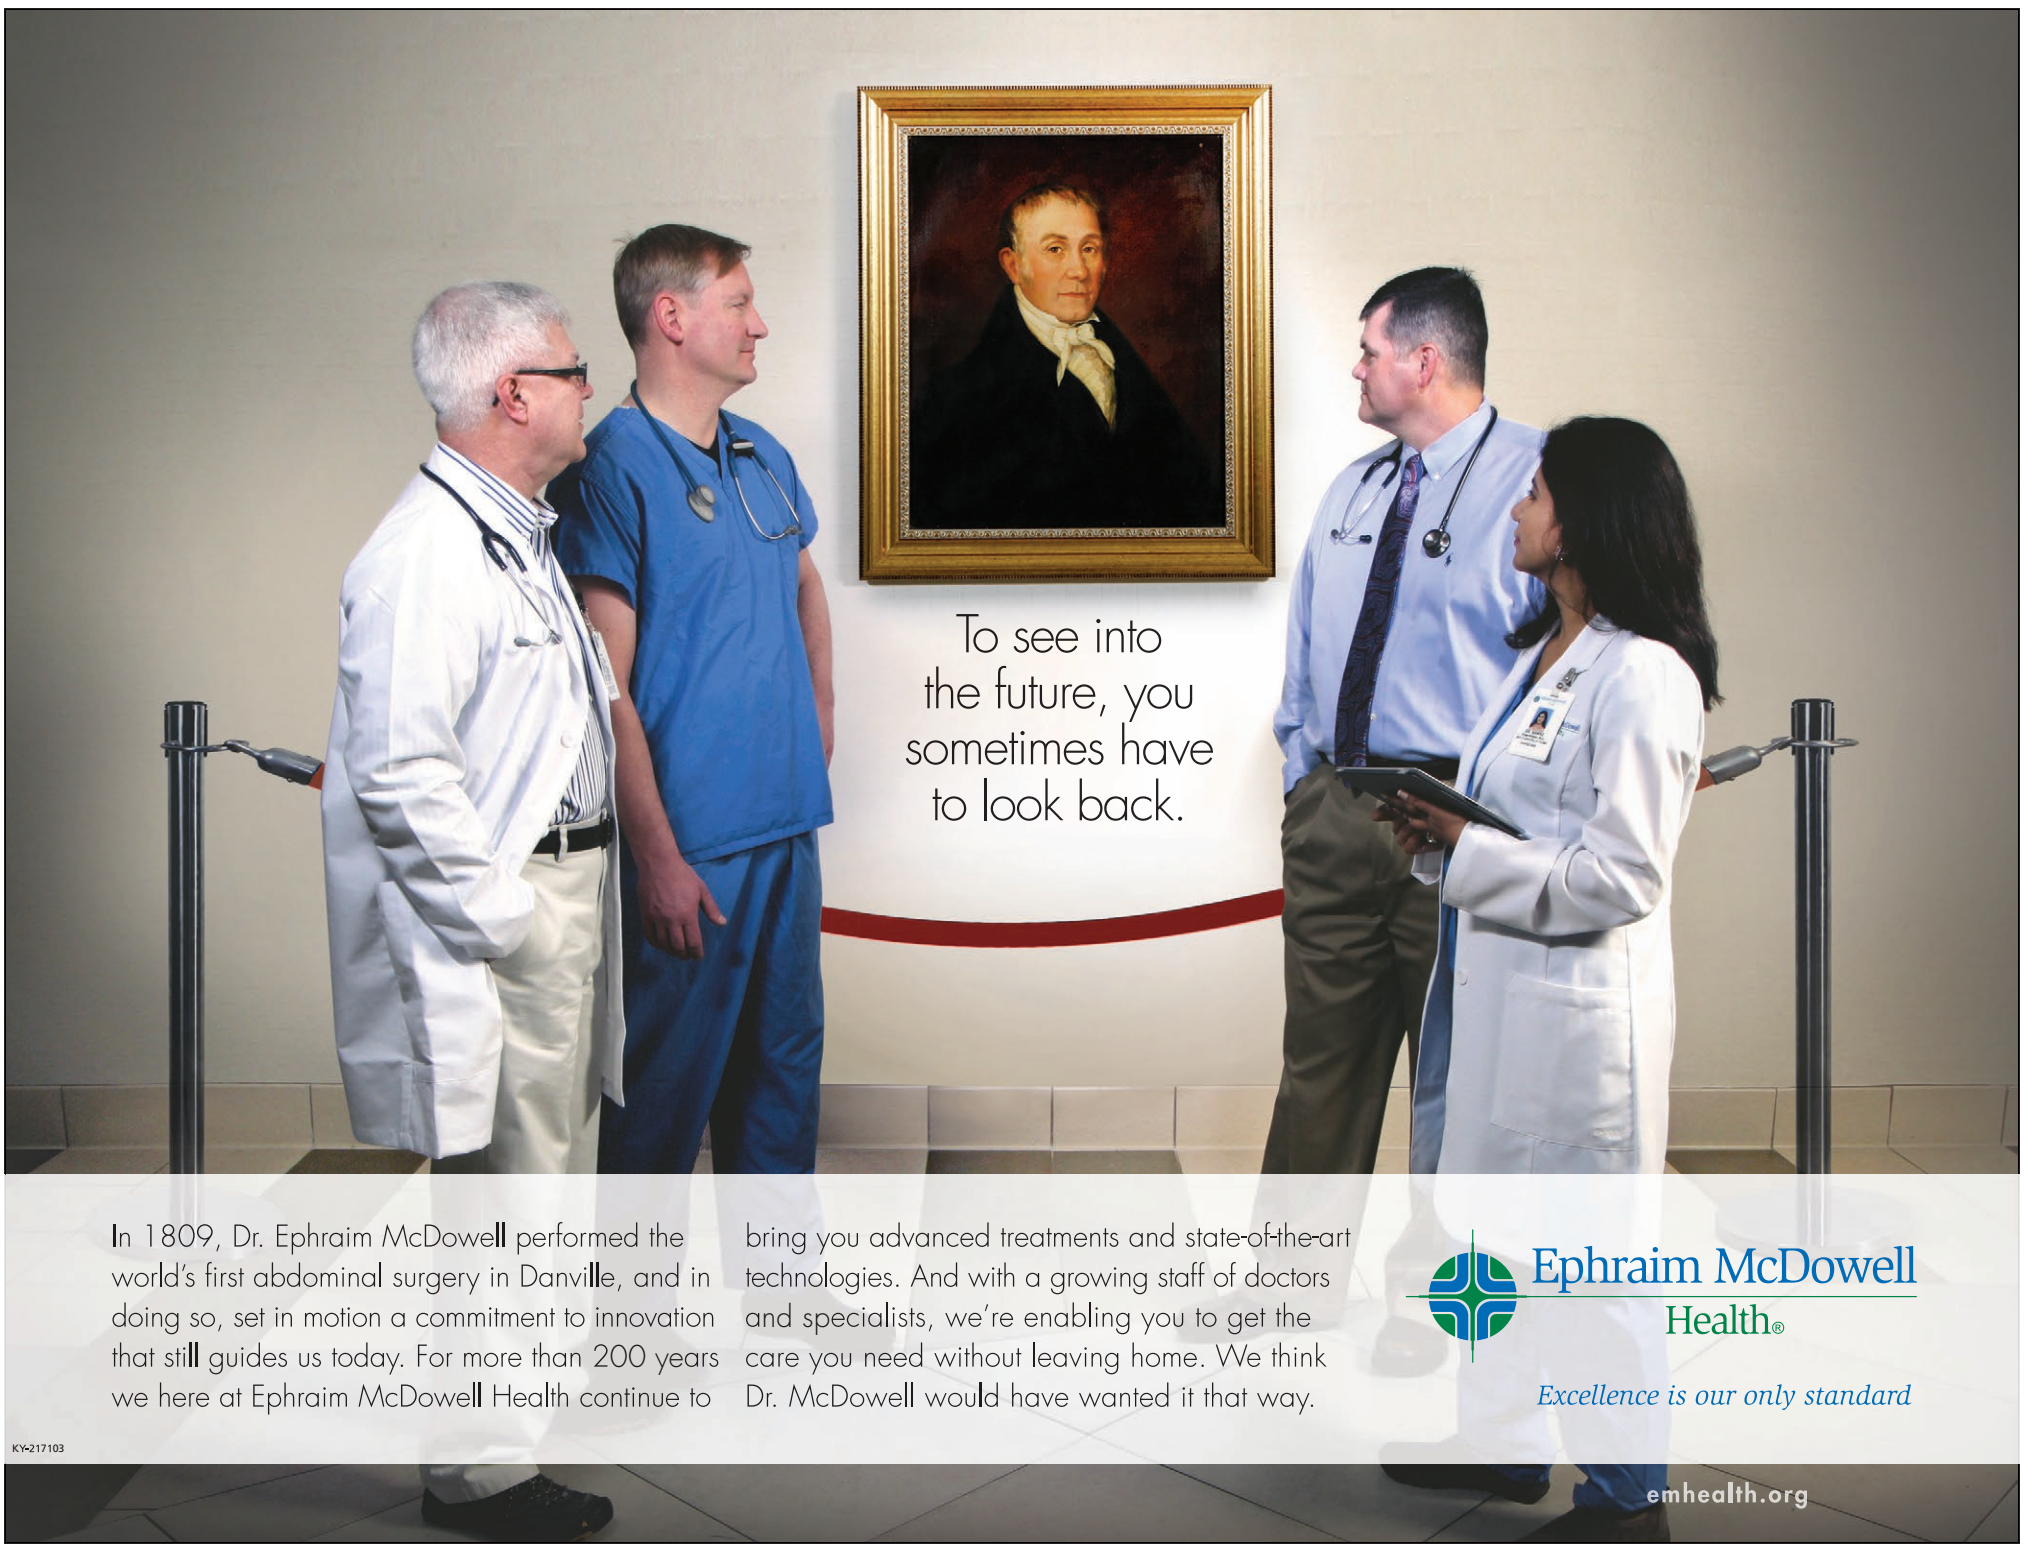

Monday, July 13 is the next Men's Group meeting. We will be gathering at the Stanford McDonalds at 7 p.m. to meet and fellowship. Come join us.

Are you looking for a home church? There are so many excellent churches in our area it may be hard to find that right "fit." If this describes you, stop by and visit us sometime. On Sunday mornings, we follow the traditional format with Sunday School at 10 a.m. and worship at 11 a.m. On Sunday night, we begin at 6 p.m. and have an open forum for singing and testimony followed by the message by either Bro. Buford or Youth Pastor Dennis Hasty. On the first Sunday night of each month, we devote the entire service to singing and testimonies. On Wednesday night, we carve out the 7 p.m. hour to Biblical teaching for adults, youth and children. Adults meet in the sanctuary in an informal setting, children in the Sunday School rooms and the youth alternate between the church and fellowship hall.

What's our dress code? Simply put, there isn't one. Come as you are, we just ask that you wear clothes. For more information about the church and different activities that are available, visit us on the web at www.stanfordchurchofthenazarene.com, and as always don't forget to "like" us on Facebook. Also, you can always contact the church at (606) 365-1260 and leave a message. Pastor Buford or someone else will give you a call back.

Want to see a service? We have established a Youtube channel and all services are posted to the channel and linked to the Facebook page.

The church has an active food assistance program. If you know of anyone or have a need yourself, please leave a message at the church.

Ethics board sparks city council debate

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – When Mayor Eddie Carter attempted to reappoint two people to the Stanford's Board of Ethics he was met with opposition which ultimately delayed the appointment.

During the May 7 city council meeting, Carter recommended two people – Calvin Denham and Theresa Long – be reappointed to the board.

The Board of Ethics consists of three members who are approved by the city council and appointed by the mayor. Each member serves a three-year term and meetings are held as necessary at the request of the chairperson.

Councilwoman Peggy Hester said she is tired of reappointing the same people to the same committees when there are plenty of others in the community who are willing to serve.

"I just think we need to involve the citizens of this community that are willing to serve and not just keep putting the same people on over and over, that's my opinion," Hester said. "Theresa Long is on the school board. According to the League of Cities Handbook, it says that she can't be on the county school board and be on the city board."

Carter said its perfectly legal.

"I've worked with Calvin Denham and I have great respect for him. I've known Theresa my whole life. But its your call," Carter said. "We can't change the past. If you have somebody you feel would be a good member of the ethics board, come to me and I will reconsider. You make a point Peggy."

Hester said she's not trying to offend anyone and that she is friends with both Denham and Long.

"I just think we don't need to keep the same people in the same positions over and over," she said.

Councilwoman Sara Givens suggested the council gather names of people interested in serving on the ethics board and turn them in.

The council agreed to table the appointment until a future council meeting.

Several council members also questioned the role of the ethics board and wondered how often the group meets.

Irene Jaggers, who was in attendance, said she serves on the ethics board and no one has ever called a meeting.

"You hope they never have to have a meeting," Carter said.

Councilman Narren James said the ethics board seems to meet only if there is an ethics issues but he believes there should be a chairman and they should meet at least once a year.

"Is there anything, an ordinance or KRS that defines how ethics boards operate or how often they meet?" James asked.

Carter said he didn't think so but he agrees they should meet at least every year or every six months.

City Attorney Chris Reed said the council could look at creating a municipal order to require the ethics board to meet.

"You hope you don't need the board," Carter said, "but I agree with you. We can't change the past but we'll look forward on that."

In other business, the council has approved the second reading of an amended ethics ordinance, which will prohibit nepotism – the unfair practice by a powerful person of giving jobs and other favors to relatives.

"If you'll look, you'll see our previous ethics ordinance is all of maybe seven words and says nepotism is not prohibited," said City Attorney Chris Reed.

According to Reed, every city is required to have some kind of statement regarding nepotism.

"Right now, nepotism is not prohibited in Stanford," he said.

Councilman Narren James asked Reed if the change to the ethics ordinance will impact any current employees of the city.

"No, its not retroactive. It will take effect on the day it is entered and you'll just move forward on everything you all do," Reed said.

The second readings of the amended ethics ordinance was heard and approved during a special called meeting on May 12.

Bill Jenkins, a retired Vietnam helicopter crew chief, holds a picture of the Dark Horse Knife he made.

Local Vietnam veteran remembers fallen friends with handmade knives

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

Bill Jenkins is a maker of many things. Here, he holds a knife sheath with a battle cross image that he made, as well as a unique walking cane.

STANFORD – Dark Horse Knives isn't just the name of veteran Bill Jenkins' company – its the name of the unit he served with during the conflict in Vietnam.

Jenkins served as a helicopter crew chief in Vietnam, but today he frequents the Lincoln County Veterans Outreach Center, where many of his artistic talents are on display – including a painting of George Washington.

"I painted that on a mattress cover when I was in Vietnam," Jenkins said. "Any way you walk in that room, he's always looking at you."

As a maker of many things, Jenkins said knives are something he has always enjoyed making.

Jenkins' handmade knives are unique in more ways than one, with antler or bone handles and the words Dark Horse imprinted in the steel.

There is one particular knife that Jenkins said is a story in itself because it commemorates those who served with him in Vietnam and those who didn't make it home.

"This knife's handle was made of elk horn. The horn grew out about four inches and fell off, then another horn grew out of the side of it. I looked at it and thought it'd be neat because I could make a knife handle that would fit your hand," Jenkins said.

So Jenkins made the knife using the elk horn and sold it to a medic who he served with in Vietnam.

"The medic gave the knife to another man – who isn't a veteran – and he studied it and said the horn that broke off represents the men who died over there and the part of the horn that grew back is the men who came home," Jenkins said.

The man who received the knife went on to make a special box for it, spending over $6,000 to purchase an ammo door off of a Huey Helicopter and put 68 dog tags of men from the Darkhorse unit who passed away in combat in Vietnam, including one Kit Carson Scout.

"Some of them were my real good friends," Jenkins said.

A U.S. pilot Jenkins met in Vietnam who was killed while flying is also commemorated inside the box.

Jenkins said the pilot's ring was sent back to the U.S. after he was killed and after being lost for some time, it finally made its way back to the pilot's daughter.

"They had another ring made just like it and then they carved a heart out of purple heart and white heart wood and mounted the ring on it," Jenkins said.

The new owner of the knife brought the box and all of the new additions to Kentucky for Jenkins to see and laid a large orange sheet with the words Dark Horse across the kitchen table.

Jenkins said the box was beautiful and had handles on each side that resembled those found on a casket.

"I looked at some of those names of my best friends and it kind of got me," Jenkins said. "One of these guys was just like a brother to me. Me and him went through a lot together. When I look at that there's just so many memories there."

The life expectancy of a helicopter crew chief in Vietnam was about six months, Jenkins said, but he managed to make it a year before safely returning home.

In early life and in retirement, Jenkins has made hundreds of knives and so he didn't think much of this particular knife at the time.

"I just thought it was a knife," he said. "But its actually a good story. I told the guy, 'well I didn't have nothing to do with it, I'm just made an old rough knife. The guy said well if you hadn't made the knife, well, that's what started it all."

Lincoln firefighters respond to two fires in two days

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

EUBANK – Firefighters from Lincoln, Pulaski, and Casey counties were called to a commercial structure fire at J & J Pallet on the Lincoln-Pulaski County line Tuesday, May 12.

All Lincoln fire station units were dispatched to the pallet mill on west Hwy. 70 at around 6:30 p.m. Tuesday evening, according to Lincoln Fire Chief Danny Glass.

"I had seven tankers and two engines there," Glass said. "Eubank Fire Department had a couple engines and a tanker there as well."

Science Hill, Southeast Casey County and Brush Creek Fire Departments were also on scene with tankers, he added.

When Lincoln units arrived, an adjoining home – not owned by the pallet company – was already engulfed in flames and had practically burned to the ground, Glass said.

"We also had two semi-trailers – not the trucks, just the trailers – loaded with pallets that were involved," Glass said. "We had so much involved it took a lot of water," Glass said. "We ended up using about 133-134,000 gallons of water."

Fire crews were on scene until about 9 p.m. and no injuries were reported, Glass said.

The cause of the fire remains under investigation.

Empty home near Cedar Creek Lake burns

CRAB ORCHARD – A fire broke out at a vacant two-story home in Lincoln County Wednesday, May 13.

Lincoln Fire Chief Danny Glass said firefighters responded to the home located on Cedar Ridge Road – just before Cedar Creek Lake – at around 9:25 p.m. on Wednesday.

Glass said the two-story house was completely involved when firefighters arrived on scene.

"Apparently nobody has lived in the residence for approximately two years," Glass said. "I spoke with the last owner and he let me know it had been foreclosed on and he had all of the electricity disconnected."

However, Glass said a few weeks ago local law enforcement discovered there had been some activity on the property.

"My understanding – after talking to law enforcement and the last owner – they caught a couple people making meth," Glass said. "Somehow they had made the means of running electricity to do whatever they wanted to do."

Glass added that he didn't think those people were involved with the fire Wednesday night because he believes they have already been arrested.

A Kentucky State Police arson investigator will be looking into the exact cause of the fire, Glass said.

Breathe easy this spring

By James A. Turpin, M.D.

The spring season can cause mixed emotions for some people. While it's nice to notice the grass getting greener and the flowers blooming, those signs of nature can be hard to enjoy for individuals bothered by itchy, watery eyes and fits of sneezing caused by seasonal allergies.

If you are one of the 35 million Americans who suffer from seasonal allergies, you may have received help from your physician to help keep your symptoms under control. Extra precautions may be needed during the height of allergy season to prevent severe reactions, which include shortness of breath, difficulty swallowing, severe sweating, faintness, nausea, a rapid pulse or pale, cold, moist skin. If you experience any of those symptoms, seek immediate medical care.

The following tips can help to ease allergy problems:

•Know your allergies. If you and your physician suspect that you suffer from allergies, you may be tested to determine what is triggering your allergic symptoms.

•If you are allergic to pollen and mold, avoid being outdoors on windy days or when you begin to notice symptoms. The wind often stirs up pollen and mold and carries it through the air. It is also a good idea to avoid mowing your lawn or being near someone who is cutting grass if you are allergic to grass or molds.

•If you are allergic to pollen, minimize activity outdoors between 5 a.m. and 10 a.m. when pollen is usually emitted into the air.

•Keep car windows closed when you drive and use an air conditioner at home.

•Avoid hanging laundry outside to dry to keep pollen and molds from collecting on sheets and clothes.

If you have known allergies, it's important to visit your physician regularly for long-term treatment of allergic conditions. That treatment may include drug therapies, allergy shots or an appointment with a medical specialist who is trained to diagnose and treat allergic diseases.

Dr. James A. Turpin is medical director of Ephraim McDowell Fort Logan Hospital's Emergency Department.

Ephraim McDowell's Delta Team offering COPD screening, educational session

Ephraim McDowell Health's (EMH) Delta Team is offering a free chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) screening and educational session on Thursday, June 11 at the Boyle County Extension Office, located at 99 Corporate Drive. The educational session will begin at 6 p.m. and conclude at 7:30 p.m.

Participants can participate in a lung function screening test (spirometry) to learn if they may have reduced lung function, often a symptom of COPD. Participants will be given the results of their screening test to share with their primary care provider. Participants will also learn what they can do to self-monitor, when to seek medical attention, understand the medications they may be taking for COPD and improve overall control of their disease. The event is open to anyone in the community, including patients with COPD and/or their caregivers.

Ephraim McDowell Health developed the Delta Program to care for post hospitalized patients with a diagnosis of heart-failure, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), and pneumonia. This Delta Program is available to any hospitalized patient with the aforementioned illnesses. It has been shown nationally that patients may need extra help in managing their illnesses once they are home. This is EMH's way of helping those we serve to be able to manage their illness, find additional resources, and provide support to their caregivers. The Delta Program consists of a series of phone calls once a week from a case manager, a pharmacist, a respiratory therapist, and a dietitian.

If you or someone you know has been diagnosed with COPD, please invite them to attend the free educational program.

Stanford Lions present Godbey with scholarship

By Carol Parker

Dalton Godbey attended last week's Stanford Lions meeting. He was anxious to share his involvement in community service. He is so willing to "give back" as he said his very own life has been so touched by people and projects he has been in contact with in this area. He is so appreciative of the Future Business Leaders of America and hopes to touch other lives to bring about change as his life has been changed. Dalton plans to attend Western Kentucky University in the fall and study broadcasting and journalism.

He was chosen to receive a $500 scholarship by the Stanford Lions Club and was honored this week at the Lincoln County High School along with Kelsi Honaker and Shawnna Ingram also for community services.

This is one way the Lions give back. What a privilege to share with these three wonderful young people.

The Lions Club of Stanford is planning our next project and hoping to involve you. The Lincoln County Fair will be here the first week of July as you know and many of you may remember those wonderful brooms (two sizes - $11 and $14) and those great plastic bags. There will be a Lions booth at the fair and brooms and bags will be on display. You "have to have" a new broom and several bags for leaf pickup or just plain ole garbage can liners so don't forget! We will see you at the fair - more info. to come.

If you would like to attend a Lions meeting, come on over to the Stanford library on the 1st or 3rd Monday each month. Involvment is a good thing. If you have any questions, call Lion Jim Benken at 606-365-1534.

NEW COVENANT CHURCH NEWS

By Bethany Rowland

"And you will know the Truth, and the Truth will set you free (John 8:32)."

Stories can get twisted so easily. Sometimes by mistake, other times because the teller of the story doesn't want others to know the truth. Sunday, Pastor Joel Rowland taught us that the accuser of the brethren always does the latter. He will always manipulate and lie in order to make us believe his story instead of the truth. Satan wants to convince the children of God that they are not good enough, that they have gone too far, that this is the end of the story. But that couldn't be further from the truth. If we quit reading in the middle of the story then Samson never gains any strength back, David doesn't kill Goliath, Daniel doesn't make it out of the lion's den. If we quit reading in the middle of the story, Jesus is still in the grave. But that isn't where the story ends. If you keep reading you see that each of these stories ends in victory. Don't let satan twist the story to make it seem like this is the end, trust in the Truth of God and His word. This chapter may be filled with fear and regret, but the book ends in victory. It's time to get the story straight.

New Covenant meets at 213 N. Depot Street in Stanford. Service Times: Sunday 11 a.m. Worship and Sunday evening 7 p.m. Worship and Teaching.

Ottenheim community news

By Dorothea Schlappi

Hope all the women had a good Mother's Day on May 10.

The locust and blackberries are blooming at the same time this year, so, maybe we'll get by with only one cold spell. The weather has a mind of its own, we just have to go along with it. The farmers have had a dry spell to get some crops in.

Word was received from Mary L. (Hubbard) Hayes of Ohio that a second brother has passed away. Paul passed away about two months ago and now Harold passed away two weeks ago. Keep this Hubbard family in your prayers.

The Bowen baby was laid to rest last week in St. Sylvester Cemetery. Keep the families of this child of God in your prayers.

Colleges have been having graduation exercises now and lots of new people are going into the work day world. One of my grandchildren, Danielle Lowery, was a graduate from Akron College in Ohio on May 10. She is going into the business world in Graphic Design. Good wishes and jobs to the graduates. She is the daughter of Ellen and Larry Lowery.

A surprise party was held Sunday for Josh Sparks who is going into police training. We wish him the best and proud of him.

Hope everyone is feeling better now the weather has been improving. Have a good week and God bless.

IJ OPINION

Drawing the line

Tattooed Jesus, yoga and the debate over school endorsement of religion

by Charles C. Haynes

Legal battles over when and where to draw the church-state line on school endorsement of religion can be a nightmare for administrators, a headache for judges and a payday for lawyers.

Consider the recent lawsuit in Lubbock, Texas over an advertisement a company called Little Pencil wanted to display during the football games played at the local high school.

The ad featured a depiction of Jesus wearing a crown of thorns with words like "outcast," "addicted" and "jealous" tattooed across his upper body (symbolizing the belief that Jesus took on the sins of the world).

The owner of Little Pencil, David Miller, figured that if you want to reach kids with a biblical message, the jumbotron in the local high school football stadium is probably an effective place to advertise – especially in the state of Texas where religious fervor can reach fever pitch on Friday nights.

But school officials rejected Miller's ad, worried that the religious message would be perceived as being endorsed by the school in violation of the Establishment clause of the First Amendment. Administrators also argued that the image contradicted the school's policy banning students from having visible tattoos.

Miller sued, claiming that school officials had violated his First Amendment rights to free speech and free exercise of religion. In March, Miller lost his case when the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court decision in favor of the school district. (Little Pencil, LLC v. Lubbock Independent School District)

The court ruled that it was reasonable for the district to worry about the appearance of crossing the line separating church and state if the tattooed Jesus was displayed on the jumbotron.

Meanwhile in California, a state court of appeals handed down a decision in Sedlock v. Baird, another case involving the appearance of school endorsement of religion – with a very different result.

At issue in Sedlock were yoga classes taught in the Encinitas, California school district. A group of parents sued, charging that teaching yoga in public schools is unconstitutional state promotion of religion.

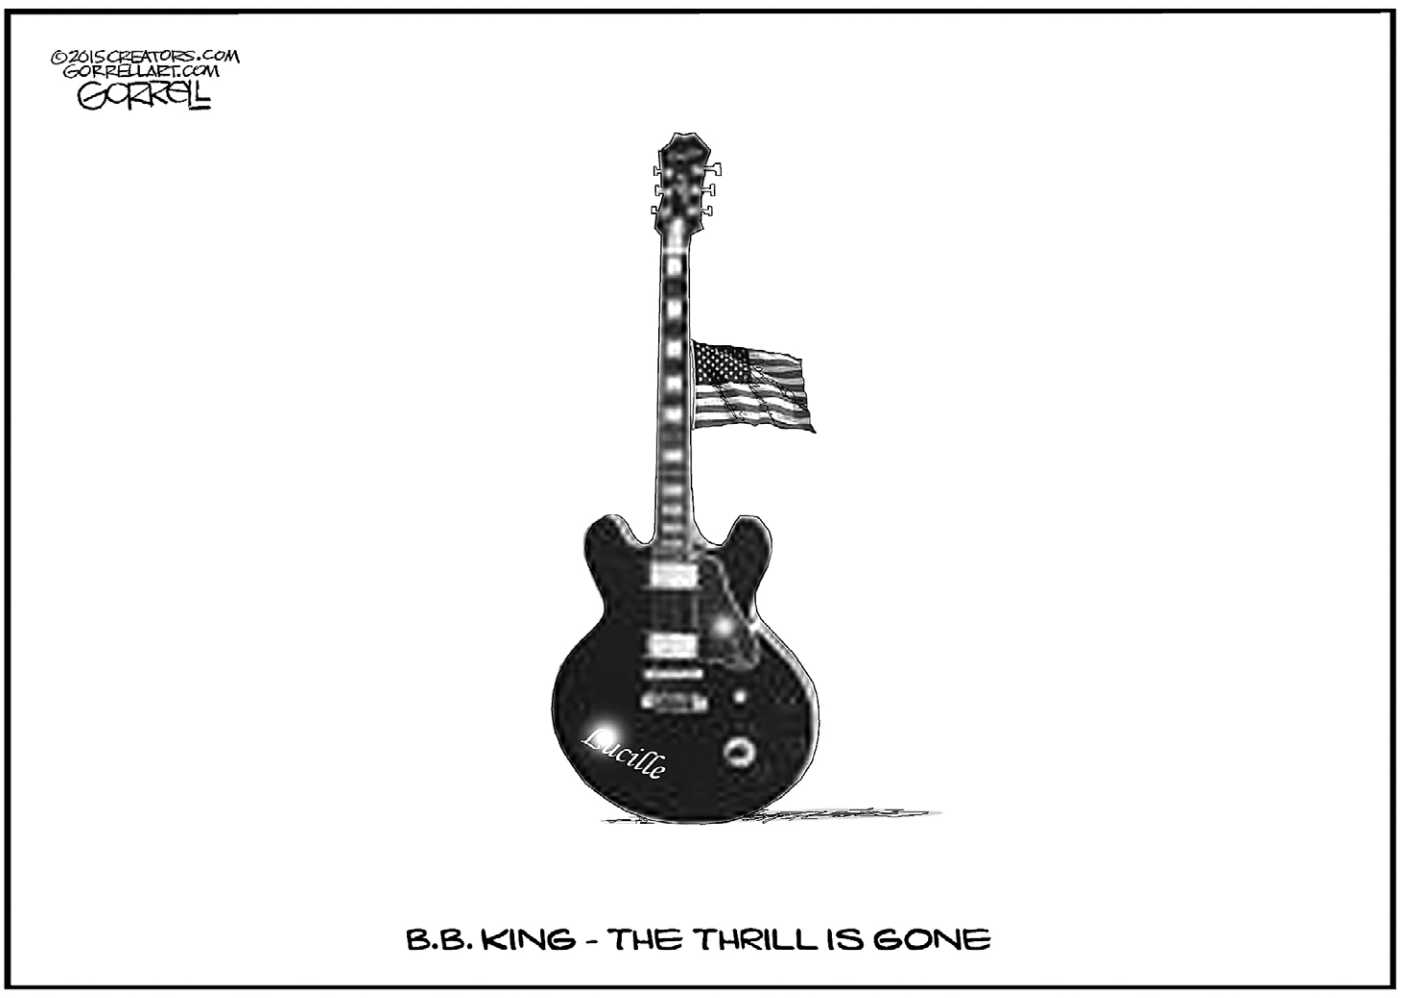

To avoid any appearance of school endorsement of religion, Encinitas school officials had stripped the yoga courses of Sanskrit terms and eliminated all references to the religious origins and meanings of yoga postures.

Although the objecting parents argued that yoga is inherently religious and cannot be separated from its Hindu roots, the court sided with school officials. Yoga as practiced in the school, the court ruled, is secular in purpose and effect – and therefore doesn't rise to the level of state establishment of religion.

Whatever you think of the result in these two cases – and reasonable people can disagree about what constitutes school endorsement of religion – you can take comfort in the fact that school officials in both communities appear to be trying hard not to take sides in religion.

That's good news because government neutrality toward religion is an essential condition of religious freedom – especially in public schools where impressionable young people are a captive audience.

For better and for worse, messy, wacky cases about tattoos and yoga postures are a necessary and inevitable part of upholding the First Amendment in our pluralistic democracy.

Be careful who you friend and follow online

By Erin Waggoner

How big is your social media presence? Can you name the number of friends you have on Facebook? The followers you have on Twitter? The amount of likes your last Instagram picture received?

Chances are, if you are over the age of 18, these numbers aren't something you keep track of. However, if you are a teenager, I bet you can answer all of those questions with an astonishing degree of accuracy.

To today's teenagers, these numbers stand for something different than they do for most adults. While most of you reading this have never posted something in an attempt to get new followers, this is something I see with today's youth and social media almost daily.

Students today equate likes and followers with popularity. For many students, some — if not a large majority — of their followers are people they do not actually know IRL (that's "in real life" for us adults).

Most teenagers do not see anything wrong with padding their numbers of friends or followers, but it is definitely not the safest idea. The average teenager today shares a lot on social media outlets.

Last month, I discussed several ways to set privacy controls on social media accounts. The quickest way to negate all of that work is to accept friend or follow requests from anyone who sends one. We all should have some degree of privacy in our lives, especially when it comes to social media.

So, how can you fix this? It's easy: stop feeling obligated to accept everyone's friend requests.

I have an IRL friend who does not accept a Facebook friend request unless it's from someone she's met at least twice. Beyond that, she tries to base her social media friends on this idea: if she saw them at the grocery, would she stop and talk to them? That is a pretty good policy.

I am a little more flexible, but I at least need to know the person who sent it. I have had Facebook friend requests before from someone with a dozen or so mutual friends, but I had never heard of this person before, so I denied the request. Simple, right?

It is also a good idea is to talk to the teenagers in your life about their social media friends and followers. I would venture to guess that the teenager posting dozens of Instagram pictures per day is not thinking about how many of his or her followers are strangers that have now been given a glimpse into their private life.

Talk to them about not accepting all friends requests. Beyond that, urge teenagers to look through their current followers and friends with a discerning eye and weed out those whom they don't know. While this may be a tedious process, it is definitely worth it in the end.

How many friends you have in life has nothing to do with the number of social media friends/followers you may have. Knowing who is actually following you — and your kids — is a step towards privacy and safety for everyone.

Memorial Day: A time to remember and appreciate freedoms we have been given

David Meade
State Representative

FRANKFORT, Ky. (May 15, 2015) – One of our greatest presidents and Kentucky native, Abraham Lincoln, once said of our country, "America will never be destroyed from the outside. If we falter and lose our freedoms, it will be because we destroyed ourselves." That quote comes to mind as we gather in the coming days to honor those who have fought and died in wars foreign and domestic to continue to guarantee the freedom that makes us the envy of other nations and their people around the world.

By the time we gather for Memorial Day, Kentucky will have selected candidates to represent both parties for the office of Governor and Lt. Governor, Attorney General, and other statewide offices. According to data released days before the May primary election, the Secretary of State's Office predicted only one in 10 registered voters would cast a ballot.

I wonder when our forefathers first decided to take up arms and fight against the tyranny of the kings and queens they would imagine millions of Americans would not take the opportunity to freely choose who will represent them. Since those first shots were fired in support of a free America, millions of our men and women have died in battle to keep what our nation was built on intact, and help other nations escape the grip of brutal leaders bent on the destruction of their freedom.

Thinking about it brings up the question, are we taking our freedom in this country for granted? I know when I speak to a solider currently serving abroad, or a veteran who shares stories of losing a friend in battle, you can see in their faces or hear in their voices the understanding of how important their roles are in defense of the United States and the basic foundations our country was based upon. Last week marked the 228th anniversary when a Constitutional Convention was gathered in Philadelphia, with George Washington presiding, to begin work on what would become our nation's Constitution. They did so with a fresh outlook on our nation, and the recent memory of the lives lost to reach that point.

As we gather for the various ceremonies to honor those who have fought and died, let's also take the time to appreciate what Memorial Day stands for and have a refreshed appreciation for what we have been given. For as Ronald Reagan once said, "Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it to our children in their bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on to them to do the same."

PLEASANT VIEW BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

By Scena Ann Petrey

Jarod Polson will be at Pleasant View on Wednesday, May 27 at 7 p.m. During high school, he played basketball for West Jessamine; he went on to play for the University of Kentucky. He has written a book entitled "Living Beyond the Dream". Come join us as we welcome him for the service.

The choir under the direction of Reta Hampton sang a special Sunday, May 17, to start the worship services. Featuring Kallie Bailey, beautiful words in the song were "You hear me when I am calling; You catch me when I am falling; You know who I am – I am Yours!" Very comforting words to know He hears us, protects us, and redeems us!

Arrayed in their purple Bible drill shirts, the participants of the annual Bible drill demonstrated to the congregation the Bible drill activities. During the short time they practiced, they had to learn 25 Bible verses, 10 key passages, 66 books of the Bible, get to the books within 10 seconds, and get to the passages in 10 seconds. They were amazing! PVBC is the only Baptist church in Lincoln County that has the Bible drill which competes within the church, the association, and the state. The young people participating were Gavin Fowler, Cole and Caroline Blakeman, Dani and Bailey Story, Bethanie Hampton, Kalyn Peek, Rayna Wheeler and Guy Bailey. Contact Kallie Bailey if you would like more information.

Bro. Kyle's message was taken from Exodus 20:13 and Matt. 5:21-26 and was entitled "Do Not Murder". The first four commandments concentrate on our relationship with God; the last six concentrate on our relationship with our fellow man. Because God values human life, He gave us the commandments to teach us how to live for Him and with others in the world.

While we do not contemplate physically murdering anyone, we commit "murder" in other ways. Harboring anger, resentment, unforgiveness, and bitterness against our fellow man is in a way murder.

After all, if God can forgive us for all we have done against Him why can we not forgive things that are done to us? To demonstrate this, Bill Collins "arrested" and put Bro. Kyle in handcuffs Sunday. To show how God's love for us caused Jesus to take on the penalty for us of our sins, the handcuffs were removed and put on Bill. Neat demonstration to show God's love and forgiveness!

Following the morning message, Hayley Underwood went forward to present herself for baptism. Welcome!

We extend sympathy and prayers to the family of Donnie Sheffler who passed away last week. He was a cousin to Willie Petrey. We also extend sympathy and prayers to the family of Barbara Hoselcaw. She is a cousin to Charles Holtzclaw, Shirley Bunch, and Hester Hardwick.

You are invited to a baby shower for Jessica and Bro. Kyle on May 24 at 2 p.m. (notice the time change) in the fellowship hall. They are in need of basic necessities.

The choir will be working each Wednesday on a special patriotic musical, "I Love This Land". It will be presented on Sunday, July 5.

The Senior Adults will be going to Boone's Tavern in Berea for lunch on Thursday, May 28 (today). The bus will leave the church at 10:30; we will return around 4 p.m.

We will recognize our Graduates on Sunday, May 31 during the 11 a.m. service. A breakfast will be served for them and their families at 9 a.m. Please let the church office know of any 2015 graduates by May 25.

There will be a Vacation Bible School workshop Sunday, May 31 at 5 p.m. followed by a prayer meeting at 6:30.

On June 12, the senior adults are planning a trip to the Creation Museum for a day excursion. We will have a picnic lunch there on the grounds before visiting the museum.

Thought for the week: "God doesn't give us what we can handle; God helps us handle what we are given!"

PLEASANT VIEW BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

By Aline Matlock

Sunday, May 10 was Mothers Day and those present at Family Worship Center were thankful for all the mothers present. The music and singing was enjoyed very much.

Prayer was given for those that were in the hospital and at home. The church has been praying for Bro. Don Whitaker, who has been in the UK Hospital for about three or four weeks due to a fall. He was sent to the VA Hospital for rehab and therapy. We are trusting God for complete healing for him and others.

Remember our missionaries serving overseas, Bro. Samuel Ages from Indonesia and Sister Rebecca, daughter of Bro. Marty and Ruth Pribula, who is in Ecuador.

If you need prayers, call Sister Vicki Dowell at (606) 879-6037. She will see that your name and needs are placed on the prayer chain.

Bro. Gates' message was entitled Violent Women, found in Matthew 11:12. This was about women in God's word, who did God's work, being violent in it. The scripture speaks of violent men that endured with such strength and force seeking to do mighty things to work for the Kingdom of Heaven.

Those that know God are very privileged to be a part of God's kingdom. The Kingdom of God has been assaulted by satan and those that belong to it. From the time the church was established, it has known satan's wrath and those within. Satan has persecuted it, assaulted it, stirred up hatred for it and those that are within it.

Satan has shown much malice for God's Kingdom, but he will not pull it down or ever destroy it. God is stronger than anything satan puts against it.

We will be strengthened, spiritually, emotionally and even physically to withstand satan and his followers. The women that were violent to share this battle were women like Hannah, Esther, Rahab, Rebecca and many others. These were strong minded women, bold women who had one purpose to defy the powers of darkness and let God's work be done.

We have had some women in our day also, like Corrie Ten Boone, Florence Nightingale, Joan of Ark and Mother Theresa, who was an inspiration for men, an angel to doing without that others might have.

We should be likewise, taking the kingdom by force through prayer, faith, fearlessness, obedience, passion, surrender and the Holy Spirit.

Ambulance board approves consulting service hire

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – The Lincoln County Ambulance Board has voted to hire a consulting service to analyze the current set up and state of emergency services in the county and suggest ways to improve.

The board voted 4-2 on a proposal that was presented by board members Bob Floro and Dr. Narren James during Monday night's meeting.

Floro and James were given permission by the board in October to seek out offers from consultants.

"We know that there are some folks who want a consolidated service, some folks that want to maintain independent services. So when Dr. James and I initially approached the consultants, we simply said here is our situation, can you help us?" Floro said.

Floro said three separate consulting companies were considered but it came down to two – Medical Transport Systems, out of Somerset, and Fitch and Associates out of Missouri.

James and Floro decided the most cost-efficient and worthy choice was Fitch and Associates.

Floro said he and James used guidelines given by the board to interview the organizations, keeping in mind the $30,000 cap on the amount of money they would propose to spend in consulting to the board and county.

"This group (Fitch and Associates) actually said that our goal was to objectively benchmark our current performance against similar services and contrast current practices to best practice. So not only benchmark against other services, but benchmark against what Fitch determines is best practice. Best practice is always determined by resources available. (They will) determine any operational efficiencies – that's a positive way of saying find out what's broken," Floro said.

The proposal also states that the ambulance board seeks information about collaborative initiatives and about other strategic changes that may be necessary to thrive in a post-healthcare reform environment.

"That means that they're going to explore for us all possibilities that would be in the best interest of Lincoln County Emergency Services," Floro said. "The key deliverable for this project is a written summary report outlining their conclusion of actionable recommendations, supporting data and materials, including an action plan."

The timeline for the consultation is May through October, beginning with a teleconference kick-off and one onsite visit, as well as a "post webinar visit," Floro said.

The proposal from Fitch and Associates costs $27,500, with an additional out-of-pocket travel expense for them to visit – not to exceed eight percent of the total proposal.

"If they only make one visit, that will keep them well under the $30,000 we've proposed to spend," Floro said.

Chairman Jerry Shelton said the additional eight percent would cost $2,200.

"If we want to negotiate that eight percent down, to keep us under the $30,000, we can certainly do that," Floro said.

James told the board that he checked several references on Fitch and Associates and received very positive reviews.

Board member Billy Phillips questioned the authority of the board over the three ambulance services – Stanford EMS, Waynesburg Area Rescue Squad and East End EMS – and whether or not they would cooperate with the proposal.

"Ever since I've been on the board I was under the assumption we were to provide funds to the squads and we have no say over their day-to-day functions," Phillips said.

Shelton said he shares the same concerns.

"We're overstepping our authority by leaps and bounds. The only thing we can do as a taxing district is distribute money," Shelton said. "They're governed by their own boards on how they operate. I don't think any of the boards would object to any recommendations that are good, though."

Directors from both Stanford EMS and East End EMS were in attendance Monday night and told the board they believed their board members would fully cooperate.

Shelton said he also has concerns with the $30,000 that will be taken from ambulance services and used to hire the consultants.

"Money solves every problem and we don't have enough money. If we had excess funds I wouldn't see a problem with it," Shelton said.

Jerry Lay, Director of the Waynesburg Area Rescue Squad, asked the board whether Fitch and Associates had ever looked into any options other than consolidating ambulance services.

Floro said there was no reference to consolidation in the proposal, only "collaborative initiative."

Board member Jimmy Lane said he thinks the board should give the consultants a chance.

"I think we need to do something. These guys spent a lot of time and effort on this trying to get something done so I believe we ought to try this," Lane said.

James said he doesn't want to see anymore ambulance services to go down and know that he did nothing to stop it.

"To say that this current service is optimal – I think all of us have looked over the past year and know that there is enough evidence that we have serious issues with the ambulance services in this county when we're down two squads out of five," James said.

Judge-Executive Jim Adams addressed the ambulance board and commended their efforts for attempting to see where the future of Lincoln County's ambulance services are moving.

Adams said he can count on phone calls from people in the McKinney and Moreland areas asking what is being done about the ambulance services.

"My answer to them is 'I don't know' and that's not a good answer for a judge-executive to give. So they further question why I don't know and I say because our ambulance board doesn't know. So I want to applaud all of you for making an effort. You're not required to take the recommendations but at least its a step in the right direction," he said.

James made a motion to "engage Fitch and Associates to evaluate the status of the current ambulance services in Lincoln County, making recommendations to the board as to the most effective use of ambulance board funds to provide the best service to all residents of the county."

The motion passed 4-2 with board members Billy Phillips and Larry Yantz opposed.

In other business, the board voted unanimously to amend the current contract with ambulance services to improve the board's insight into internal operations.

"I recommend when any squad in the county receives a violation, they notify the ambulance board of the violation," Shelton said. "That kind of lets us know a little bit more about the internals."

Shelton said by being notified, the board will be more prepared and aware when a particular ambulance service is struggling in some areas.

Floro said he is in favor of the recommendation.

James also recommended formalizing the time frame in which ambulance services turn in their run reports.

"What we voted on the last time – which was the timeliness of reporting – I don't know if that's in the contract, but maybe it'd be good to insert that into the contract," James said.

Shelton said the new contract will begin on July 1.

the U.S. Armed Forces today.

"The nation still has their best interests at heart," Hunt said, "The key conclusions from a Military Times survey of over 2,300 active duty troops – sailors, soldiers, airmen and marines – said there is a relentless operations tempo, deep cuts in personnel numbers, growing workload and shrinking compensation."

Hunt said the survey revealed 91 percent of active duty members questioned said they had good or excellent quality of life in 2009 and in 2014 it dropped to 56 percent, with 70 percent of those surveyed saying they expect things to get worse.

"I don't care what political persuasion you are, but I want to say this so we don't go down the path of blind sheep. I say this for one reason – I love each every veteran and the family members who stood behind them – and I still do (love) these armed service members who are serving us today. They deserve better than what we as a nation are doing," Hunt said. "I challenge each of you who have worn the uniform, to make sure that your legacy is not dwindled away to nothing by contacting your legislators and congressmen."

Hunt closed his speech saying "God Bless each and every one of you."

Sharon Martin, of Heritage Hospice, helped Abney and local boy scouts pass out certificates and pins to veterans, including members of American Legion Posts 18 and 345 and the Ladies Auxillary Post 3634.

Blanchett – Lincoln's oldest veteran – drew an emotional response of tears and laughter from the crowd as he spoke about moving to the county after his wife passed away, and his time in the service as a young man.

call us and pay us to come fix whatever is wrong with your roof at no cost to you all."

The new roof is covered by insurance for up to 20 years and anything after that falls on the City of Stanford.

"I've been roofing for a long time," Mitchell said, "When 20 years is up, that day isn't going to be the day that you need to replace the roof. I would say you're going to get 25 years easy, because of the slope you have. But you can start budgeting at that 20-year point."

Mitchell said the reason for the damage was the placement of the gutters above the roof, which allowed to snow to back up into the building.

"The gutters should never be above your roof, they should always be lower. That's why the back of your gutter is higher than the front of your gutter. That way if anything backs up it goes over the front and not over the back," Mitchell said.

New gutters and new wood-blocking are included in the bid price offered by Kalkreuth.

Carter asked Mitchell to explain the warranty in more detail, as far as required routine maintenance checks.

"Its going to say in your warranty that your roof needs to be inspected twice a year – which means you all can check around the roof and get up any debris that might be stopping up your gutters," Mitchell.

Mitchell said the city can pay Kalkreuth to inspect the roof for $600 a trip and $1,200 a year, but the city can also do the routine maintenance checks on its own.

"But the main part of that is keeping your gutters cleaned out," Mitchell said.

Carter said the warranty will cover any future issues as long as the city documents that the roof has been checked every six months.

The city always has the option of calling Kalkreuth for an inspection as well, Mitchell said.

"If you wanted to call us once a year, you could. What we do when we inspect it – our guys get down and check every penetration, all of the pipes, all of the boxing you have up there – and for that $600, if there is anything going wrong then it will be included in that. We're going to find anything that might possibly go wrong and take care of it at that point," Mitchell said.

Fire Chief Scott Maples said he has worked with Kalkreuth before and agrees that this roofing style is the best way to go.

Maples also agreed to do the routine maintenance checks since he is familiar with the process.

"It just says it has to be inspected twice a year, it doesn't say by us. You just have to have a record," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said Kalkreuth could possibly begin replacing the roof in as little as three to four weeks.

"Every day it rains that puts us back," Mitchell said, "but once we start, we're talking a week – seven days – to complete the roof. We'll send four to six guys."

For the first two days it will just be guys cutting insulation, he said.

The city council voted unanimously to approve the bid from Kalkreuth and the mayor said he would move forward with the insurance company immediately.

"Depending on if we're really backlogged, we may send eight guys and just wear it out," Mitchell said. "You can send us a letter saying that you're waiting on the insurance company and we'll get you on the schedule."

Carter said the interior contents and repairs are separate issues from the roof and will be addressed in the near future.

BOE

purchase and renovate the old Food Lion building.

Hatter said the obvious advantage to the Food Lion plan is the shorter timeline, including the ability to immediately begin setting up the technology hub.

"It is an older building too though," Hatter said.

Loy said the total cost of remodeling Food Lion, as well as building new classrooms onto Stanford Elementary and remodeling the existing Central Office for Early Head Start offices, would cost around $5.2 million.

Hatter said the drawback for constructing the new building is technology would have an extended stay in the mobile units and couldn't move into the building until Nov. or Dec. of 2016 – 20 months from now.

"We talked about that and we could build a new, separate building that could go faster I guess," she said.

Loy said technology was occupying about 2,000 square feet, not including storage space.

"If a new, free-standing building on this property was done, it may be possible to reduce the size and cost. You're probably looking at a $200-250,000 commercial building. It wouldn't have any bells and whistles. You've got special electrical conditions because that is technology. But that could be done," Loy said.

Hatter questioned the need for the new cafeteria that is being proposed for the existing central office renovations – which would cost around $1 million.

"I have concerns that, in the future years, that wouldn't be well-used and that it would be an investment in a nice cafeteria that we really don't need," she said. "We could, if we wanted to put our heads together, divert those funds to pay for something for technology, such as another building – something they could move into faster."

Lisa Dickerson addressed the board with concerns over the state of the district's technology capabilities and the current frustrations of students and teachers.

"The frustration that your teachers and your students are feeling right now, it's just overwhelming on certain days, to not have internet access," Dickerson said. "Our teachers use technology every single day. A lot of our testing is going online. Today, we were talking to seniors about grades and they couldn't get on Infinite Campus to know what their grades were. There is so much that is tied to that one integral piece of education."

Hatter said after the board votes, they will begin planning to address the technology issues.

As far as a timeline for the project, Loy said it will take three to four months to get a design ready and a bid put out and then 16 months of construction time.

Loy said one of the most difficult things about the construction is that the existing board will have to remain in the current central office while the new one is being constructed and then move to the new building so that renovations can be made to the other– delaying the preschool and Early Head Start programs from moving out of mobile units.

Hatter said the insurance only covers the cost of the mobile units for two years and one year will have already passed by August of this year.

"We will only have insurance paying for the mobile units for one more year. So all of this will need to be negotiated with the insurance company," she said.

Hatter added that the negotiations with the insurance company can't be done until the board takes action and submits a plan.

Board member Denny Hogue said he thinks the board will get a lot of flack for building the new structure, even though wouldn't be funded with tax payer money.

"If we can spend money building less that would serve us as the board and then have some money left over then I think the public would approve of that more. It sounds to me like we're trying to build the Taj Mahal and I would never be for doing that," Hogue said.

Board member Marvin Wilson said he spent three days surveying people in the district to see what the people want.

"I spent about $100 and three days of time and talked to over 100 people in my district because that's the only way I knew to get the cat off my back and see what everybody wanted – what the people who pay the bills really wanted," Wilson said.

Wilson said 98 percent of the people he spoke to were for the construction of a new building.

"They don't want to renovate something that's going to rot down or something they'll have problems with the rest of their life. They want a new building. They want something for their money. The one thing all of them said was, in all these years, is no one has ever asked them, and that's what I did. I'm not going to make no bones about it, I'm voting for what they asked me to vote for," Wilson said.

Another board member, Theresa Long, agreed with Wilson and followed up with what she discovered after asking people in the community about the project.

"I have made a lot of phone calls. I've spoken to former school board members, people you all have elected in the county and in the city here. I've polled everybody I ran in contact with over the last month, because its not something that I take lightly. I see the pros, I see the cons, on both sides," Long said.

Long said she is going to vote for what she feels is in the best interest of the school district and all of the children who will be utilizing the Lincoln County School Board.

"When we leave here tonight, not every body is going to be happy with the decision that is made and for that I am truly sorry," she said.

Hatter said whatever the board decides, the technology issues will still remain and the board will begin tackling those issues immediately.

"I have listened to my peers, and I respect your opinions and I hear what you say, and I have listened to board members and I respect your opinion too," Hatter said. "To unify us I'm going to say let's join together, whatever the board votes, and let's support that decision and let's go on."

Hogue made a motion to renovate the Food Lion building but the motion died for lack of a second.

Wilson followed with a motion to approve the construction of the new building and Long seconded the motion.

The board also voted and approved the hiring of Sherman Carter Barnhart as the architect for the project.

Cummins, Hocker qualify for state

ROYCE CUMMINS, competing in his first year of track and field for Lincoln, is ending his season on a high note. The LCHS senior posted a state-qualifying time in the 400-meter dash Saturday at the Class 3A, Region 7 Championships at Madison Central High School. Cummins finished in a time of 52.40 seconds to claim the runner-up spot. He will close out his high school track season Saturday on the UK Outdoor Track Complex in the KHSAA State Finals. Cummins' 400 state event is set for a 7:10 p.m. start.

RICHMOND — When Lincoln County track and field athletes Royce Cummins and Tiandra Hocker entered the track at Madison Central High School Saturday, they were ready to compete in their final high school regional.

However, they made sure that their final regional would not be their last meet.

The senior duo managed to extend their season another week by posting a state-qualifying time and distance in the Class 3A, Region 7 Championships.

Cummins, who only took up track and field this season, finished as runner-up to Pulaski County's Matthew Crawford in the boys' 400-meter dash to earn his first state berth. Crawford won in 52.15 seconds and Cummins crossed the finish line right behind him in 52.40 seconds to claim the runner-up spot and a chance to compete in this weekend's 2015 Kentucky Track and Field State Championships at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

"This is actually my first year of running high school track so I'm just really glad I could qualify for state," Cummins said. "I felt really good. I actually got my personal record. I beat it by eight-tenths of a second so, to be honest, I felt really good."

TIANDRA HOCKER, left, stays relaxed before her shot put event at Saturday's regionals by watching teammates compete on the track. Hocker and teammate Spencer Sims try to stay dry under the umbrella of Lincoln coach Rodney Bunch before the call was made for shot put. The Lincoln senior qualified for her first state meet with a runner-up throw of 31-05.50. Hocker will now be competing Saturday at 6 p.m. in the KHSAA State Championships at UK.

Hocker, a field competitor for the Lady Patriots, punched her ticket to her first state championships with a second-place finish in the girls' shot put event. Hocker threw a distance of 31-05.50 to earn the runner-up spot and an automatic state berth. Eulah Perkins of Pulaski County repeated as regional shot put champion with a throw of 34-10.00.

"To be honest, I really didn't think I could make it. It was a shocker," said Hocker.

But the Lady Patriot athlete had extra incentive to push herself in the regional shot put.

"Actually, my mom had texted me and she was like, 'It's your senior year, and I would really like to see you go to state, so I really wanted to do it for her. I was excited and so was she," Hocker said.

While Hocker questioned whether she had what it took to make the state meet, Cummins felt pretty confident about his chances in the 400. At least until he took the track, that is.

Mistakes costly for Lincoln in 12-9 loss

By Hal Morris
hmorris@centralkynews.com

STANFORD — Lincoln County gave itself plenty of opportunities to score Tuesday. But the Lady Patriots gave Boyle even more.

Lincoln outhit the Lady Rebels in Tuesday's 45th District semifinal at Veterans Park, but also committed six errors in a 12-9 loss to end their season at 11-5.

"I thought we played really, really hard tonight. We got down seven runs late and we never gave up, we never quit. Four or five weeks ago, that's probably a five-inning game just the way it goes," Lincoln coach Kevin Bandura said. "We've got to make more plays if we want to beat a team like Boyle. But give them credit, I thought they had a really good game plan and took advantage of our mistakes. We had bases loaded no outs in the first and didn't score."

"Those things come back to haunt you against a really good team like Boyle."

Two of those errors came in the bottom of the fifth, as Boyle scored five times to break open a tight game.

Danielle Roney reached on an error, Gracie Edmiston walked and Gabby Gabriel was hit by a Sydney Slone pitch. Karibeth Elliott then drew a bases-loaded walk to score Roney, and Maddie Robbins blooped a shot right over Jaylan Sowders' head at third to score Edmiston. After Madison Bryant reached on another error which scored Elliott, Robbins and Bryant later scored on Hannah Wilson's single to left to make it a 12-5 game.

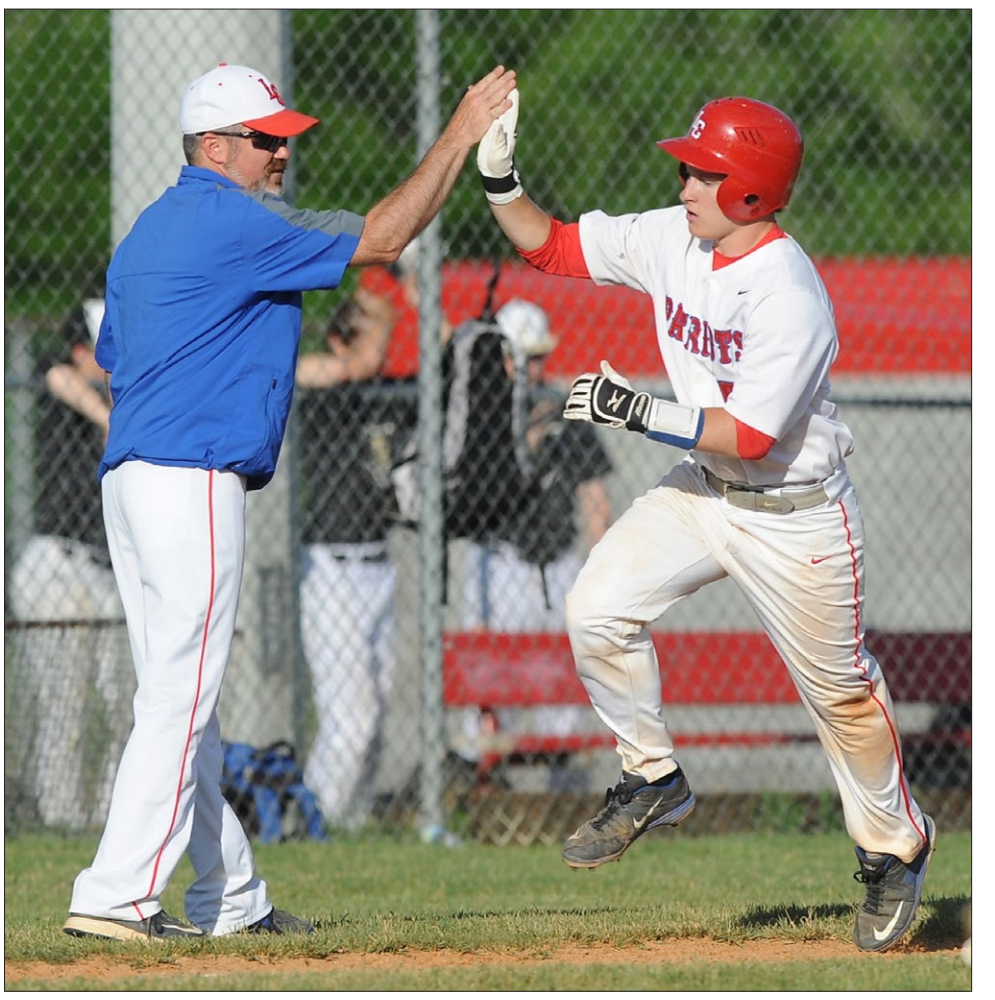

But the Lady Patriots came right back in the top of the sixth, scoring four times.

Bat Pats fall short in district semifinal

By Jeremy Schneider

STANFORD — Three times during the 45th District semifinal Tuesday, Lincoln County senior Josh Wilson belted a double. Unfortunately for the Patriots, Wilson was left stranded on the bases each time.

Such was the night for the fourth seed in the tournament as Lincoln fell to top-seed Garrard County 4-3. The Golden Lions advanced to face Danville in Wednesday's final and earned a spot in the Region 12 tournament.

Wilson's three doubles were the bulk of the offensive production for Lincoln. The only other offensive highlight was Austin Greer's solo home run in the fourth inning to tie the game at 1-1.

Lincoln coach Daryl Day admitted no one expected his Patriots to upset Garrard, which made him wonder what could have happened had the Patriots drove in Wilson after he hit a game-opening double. Instead, Wilson was stranded at third base.

Lincoln softball team clobbers Casey 15-3 in five innings

By Nancy Leedy
nancy@theinteriorjournal.com

LIBERTY — The Lincoln County Lady Patriot softball team took the diamond at Casey County Friday ready to play, and the host Lady Rebels proved no match for the visitors.

Lincoln pitcher McKenzie Hensley fired a four-hit complete-game effort as the Lady Patriots dominated the Lady Rebels 15-3 in a five-inning win.

Madisen Hinkle, Hannah Brown and Carmen Green led Lincoln's 19-hit slugfest with three hits apiece. Brown had two RBIs and Hinkle drove in five runs, including four off a third-inning grand slam. Jaylan Sowders, Sydney Slone, Chyna Dyehouse and Kelsey Meece each had two hits in the win, with two RBIs for Slone and Meece.

The game was tied 2-2 at the end of the first inning, but Lincoln (11-13) put the game away over the next two innings by putting up 13 runs – 6 runs in the second and 7 runs in the third.

Leadoff batter Kristen Meece got Lincoln started with a one-out walk in the top of the second and, after stealing her way to third base, scored on Brown's second hit of the game. Sowders also walked on and stole second, then she moved to third on a Hinkle hit while Brown came on home. Slone drove in Sowders with a single and she later scored on a two-out single by Green. Green completed her trip around the bases on a Jacque Upchurch hit to make it 8-2.

Casey starter Haley Price and the Lady Rebel defense finally got out of the inning with a tag-out of Upchurch on a steal attempt at second base.

The list of scoring runners read almost identical in the Lady Patriots' 7-run third inning. With one out, Price hit Kristen Meece with a pitch, then walked Brown before giving up back-to-back hits to Sowders and Hinkle. Sowders' shot past short loaded up the bases, then Hinkle followed with her grand slam homer to center field. Dyehouse singled to reach, and she and Abby Sparkman, who was hit by a pitch, both scored on a Kelsey Meece double to extend the margin to 15-2.

Lincoln's two big innings spelled the end of two Casey pitchers' time on the mound, with Price leaving in the second inning and her reliever, Jessica Richardson, being relieved by Lois Blankenship in the third.

Casey (1-21) could not produce enough runs the rest of the way to extend the game beyond five innings, with just one run scored in the bottom of the fifth. Myla McGowan, who had two of Casey's three runs, tallied the final run in the fifth off a Lashaya Carman single.

McGowan scored on a Lincoln throwing error in the first and Richardson scored on a Lauren Lee RBI-single to make it a 2-2 ballgame early.

Kristen Meece and Brown scored Lincoln's first-inning runs, with Brown driving in Meece and Slone driving in Brown.

STANFORD — The Lincoln County baseball team's regular-season home stand came to a disappointing end Thursday, as visiting West Jessamine handed the Bat Patriots a 7-3 loss.

The game was tied at 3-3 at the end of five innings of play, but the Colts were off and running over the final two innings, scoring four unanswered runs to earn the win.

West, the winningest team in the 12th Region with a record of 27-7, never trailed in the regional matchup, getting two runs on the scoreboard in its first at-bat. Tanner Graham, who had two doubles for the Colts, tagged his first extra-base hit in the first to drive in Tucker Greer and Trey Merida for a 2-0 edge.

Lincoln (10-22) got both runs back in the bottom of the third inning to tie the game. Austin Smith earned a base on balls and moved to second on a balk. The Bat Pat senior was moving on the next at-bat with Aaron Estes doubling to center field to send him home. Estes wouldn't stay on base long, with Logan Young tagging his own RBI-double to make it 2-2.

The two teams also mirrored each other in the fifth inning, with one run scored by each to keep the game deadlocked. Graham got his second double in the fifth to score Greer to briefly put West back on top 3-2. But Lincoln's Young doubled to left field in the bottom of the inning to plate Austin Greer and even it up at 3-all.

West's Layne broke the tie for good in the top of the sixth, scoring on a Braeden Lee hit. And Merida, Max Mahon and Graham scored a run apiece in the seventh for the 7-3 final.

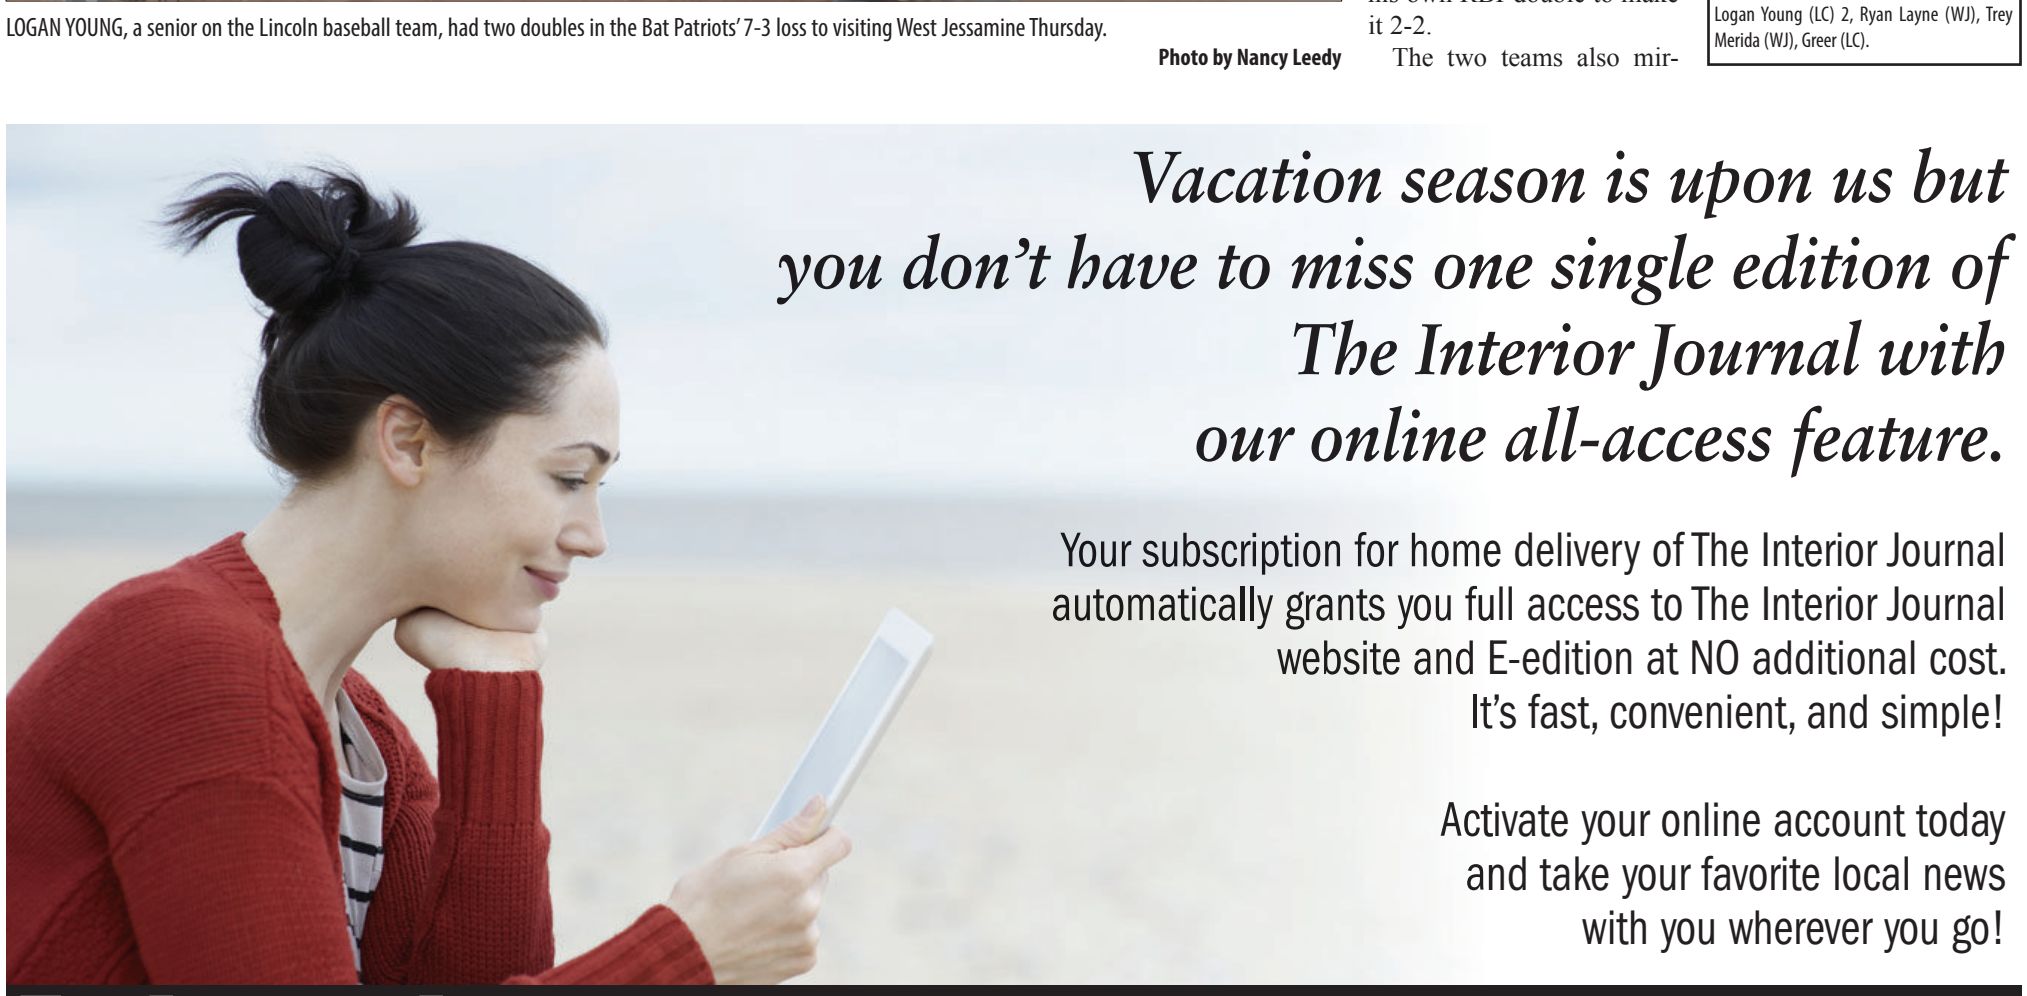

Cody Lunsford got on base for Lincoln in the first and, in the seventh, Greer made it to third and Young stood on first, but all three runners were left on as West claimed the win.

Lincoln will play at least one more game on its home diamond this season, as the Bat Patriots are playing host to the 45th District Baseball Tournament Tuesday and Wednesday.

TRACK

"I was ranked second so I was expecting to qualify," he said. "But when you get out there, you look around, you see people and you don't know how fast they are. I was pretty nervous at first, but once I got out there it was all adrenalin and I just gave it all I had and I got second."

It took Cummins just a matter of seconds from start to finish to realize his fate in the 400. It would take Hocker substantially longer to know where she stood, with shot put going through two flights of nine athletes each,with each getting three throws, then a final flight to determine the top scorers.

Throughout the competition, Hocker kept a close ear on the other athletes' throws.

"I kept listening when they'd call out what the other girls threw," Hocker said. "There was actually one girl from Pulaski County, she was really good, and she threw a 35 and I was the closest. So I actually kind of had a feeling that I was going to go to state."

Cummins actually turned in two top six finishes at Saturday's meet, backing up his runner-up spot in the 400 with a fourth-place finish in the boys' 200-meter dash. Cummins covered the distance in 23.28 seconds. South Laurel's Austin Hayes claimed the regional win in the event with a time of 21.74 seconds.

And was the Lincoln runner disappointed that he didn't also qualify for state in the 200?

"I'm good with just making the 400," Cummins said. "The 200 is just a full-out sprint, and I just know I'm not made for an all-out sprint. Those people are just fast."

And now Cummins and Hocker are bound for what will definitely be their final high school track and field meet: the KHSAA state championships. The state finals draw the elite of the sport to the UK track to showcase their talents before one of the sport's largest crowds.

"I'm really excited. I've never been on a track that big before," Cummins said. "I just can't wait to feel that atmosphere."

And he already has his goal set.

"I want to run a personal record, but I want to get top 15 because there's 24 of us. I'm ranked 21st right now and I'd really like to get top 15. That's my goal right now," Cummins said.

Hocker didn't share any goals for state, just a touch of nervousness.

"I've got a lot more (nervousness) about state than I have any other meet," she said. "I hope I'm ready for it. It will probably be a good experience for me."

No other Lincoln athletes qualified for state, however, several individuals and one relay team did turn in top six efforts.

Logan Godbey, a sophomore on the Lady Patriot team, also picked up two top six finishes, scoring in both the 1600-meter run and the 800-meter dash. She placed fifth in both events, turning in a time of 5:47.91 in the 1600 and 2:39.12 in the 800. Madison Central's Ivanna Sabino won the 1600 in 5:26.87 and West Jessamine's Gabby Long was first in the 800 in 2:26.59.

Lincoln sprinter Katie King came in in 1:07.08 in the girls' 400-meter dash to earn her sixth place. The winning time in the event was 1:01.47 set by Cassi Reed of Southwestern.

The Lady Patriot 400-meter relay team rounds out Lincoln's roll of top six finishers, with the team of Elizabeth Blaine, Kanesha Miller, Tevin Newcomb and Allison Miller racing to the finish line in 58.41 seconds to place them sixth overall. Pulaski County was the first team to the finish in the race, crossing in 54.31 seconds.

The Lady Patriots finished 10th out of 11 teams in the regional meet with 14 points. Host Madison Central walked away with the girls' team title with 169 points. Pulaski County finished as runner-up with 117 points and East Jessamine was a distant third with 53 points.

The Patriots placed ninth out of 11 teams with 15 points. Central also won the boys division, dominating the event with 191 points compared to Pulaski County's 87 second-place points. Southwestern placed third overall with 70 points.

MISTAKES

Kristin Meece reached on an error to lead off the sixth, Hannah Brown had an infield single and Sowders walked to load the bases. Madisen Hinkle then delivered a single to left to score Meece and Brown. After Chelsea Marcum drew a walk to load the bases, Chyna Dyehouse singled to left to score Sowders. The cutoff throw was high and courtesy runner Jenna King broke for home and Gabriel bobbled the ball on the throw as the Lady Patriots trimmed the lead to 12-9.

Bandura thought Lincoln had seized momentum at that point.

"Until the last out was made I never thought we'd lose that game," he said. "Just last week we scored seven runs in the seventh inning against a good Rockcastle team and beat them. We were trying to rely on that experience and tell them we've been here before we can do this."

"We've just got to keep competing and make plays. Unfortunately, we didn't play a perfect game and we made some mistakes that cost us."

Lincoln never got any closer from there.

In the seventh, Meece drew a leadoff walk and reliever Katie Grace Chadwell was replaced by Summer Cook. She got Brown to pop out to short for the first out. Sowders then grounded to second, where Boyle's Kalin Bottoms tagged out Meece then threw to Gabriel at first to complete the game-ending double play.

Brown went 3-for-3 with two RBIs, Dyehouse went 3-for-4 with an RBI and Kelsey Meece had two hits and scored twice for the Lady Patriots.

After leaving the bases loaded in the top of the first inning, Lincoln got on the board in the second.

Kristin Meece had an RBI bunt single to score Dyehouse, Kelsey Meece singled and scored on Brown's sacrifice bunt and Kristin Meece scored on a single from Sowders as the Lady Patriots took a 3-2 lead.

But Boyle (18-17) scored three times in the bottom of the second to take the lead for good and added two more in the third. Lincoln cut into the lead when Carmen Green reached on an error and scored on Brown's single and Kelsey Meece had a bunt single and scored when Brown stole second.

game in the top of the fourth on Greer's homer to center field, Garrard scored in the bottom of the inning when Phil Pozzuto was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, pushing Logan Teague across home plate.

The Lions scored twice in the fifth on Matt Wilburn's towering two-run home run to center, also scoring Seth Murphy.

Lincoln wasn't going quietly, though. Jared Long was hit by a pitch to open the seventh and Cody Lunsford drew a one-out walk, setting up Wilson's two-run double. However, Teague struck out Austin Smith for the final out, leaving the tying run on third base.

"We played well at the end of the game, got the big home run from Austin Greer to tie the game, we just didn't capitalize on it," Day said. "That's the story of the game."

Wilson started the game on the mound, throwing four innings before being pulled after Wilburn's homer in the fifth. Wilson allowed six hits and three walks with four strikeouts. Logan Young came on in relief, not allowing a base runner in his two innings of work while striking out two.

"Maybe I stayed with Josh a little long, maybe even at the beginning of that inning," Day said. "I thought about bringing Logan in at the beginning of that inning, but I asked Josh, and he looked at me in the eye and said, 'Coach, I've got this.' He makes one bad pitch. As bad as he wanted the ball, I couldn't tell him no in that situation."

The Patriots close the book on their season with a 10-24 record while Garrard improved to 19-12.

A SELECT GROUP of Lincoln County Middle School students got a special bonus on their recent field trip to the University of Kentucky campus: a 1-on-1 session with UK women's basketball coach Matthew Mitchell. The students, who were chosen for their excellent PTO fundraiser sales, just happened to run into Mitchell during their tour of Memorial Coliseum, and the UK coach took time to not only have his picture made with the students but also to talk with them for a while.

IJ FARM

Hay production is costly – make the most of it

FARM FACTS

Dan Grigson
Lincoln County Extension Office, UK College of Agriculture

May is the month which provides forage for our livestock for much of the year. Part of this abundant growth we use to feed the herd and a portion most cattlemen harvest as hay and feed at various times through the upcoming winter. Economic records and budget analysis clearly show that maximizing the grazing portion and minimizing the hay portion are major contributors to increasing profitability in a cow-calf enterprise.

Equipment, fuel and fertilizer costs are the major cash cost contributors to hay production costs. This is not considering the labor involved in the harvest and feeding of the hay, or the loss associated with its storage and feeding.

There are important strategies cattlemen can utilize for both the grazing and preservation portions of their forage crop to increase the impact. By all rights hay production is expensive, regardless of the quality of the hay.

One way to increase the return on your hay investment is to strive to produce high value hay, which means high quality hay. Given the comparative value per pound of TDN and protein in corn and soybean meal, the difference in feeding value from poor to very good quality grass hay can be as high as $50-60 per ton. That is why it is so important to cut hay in early May when grasses just start to head out and legumes just start to bloom.

Beyond the feeding nutrient value of the hay, each ton of grass will also remove $60-70 per ton in nutrients in the form of N, P, and K. This cost in nutrients is there whether you fertilized or not. Bottom line–hay is expensive. Minimize how much you need; work to keep its nutrient content high and store it like it is a valuable commodity (it really is).

The following points are a few keys to succeeding:

1) cut the hay when it is still vegetative-maturity at harvest is the primary determinant of hay quality. Each day of added age decreases quality by adding fiber and decreasing digestibility. Shoot to cut grasses in the boot to early head stage and legumes at early bloom. You can mark it on your calendar every year that our grasses and legumes are ideal for cutting the first week of May.

2) you can't always avoid the rain-rain on cut hay will lower its nutrient content. The amount of change is related to how much rain and how dry the hay was when rained on. One of the unknowns is we never know much rain to expect. However, it is guaranteed that if you wait an additional week to 10 days, nutrient content and digestibility of the hay will decline. Take some chances on the rain. A 30 percent chance of rain gives you 70 percent that it won't rain.

3) take advantage of drying conditions-begin cutting the crop early in the day (immediately before or soon after the dew is off), so that you take advantage of all the drying weather.

4) don't overuse the tedder-a hay tedder can increase the drying rate by inverting and spreading out the hay crop. However, over-tedding or teddering when the forage is too dry can result in leaf loss.

5) check the mowing height-cool season grasses can be sensitive to mowing height. Cutting below 3 inches can negatively impact your stand. Orchardgrass is probably more sensitive than fescue. Although that extra inch of lower stem might contribute to weight and volume it adds very little in regard to nutrients and digestibility.

6) don't bale it too wet-all hay will go through a few days of heating following baling. The amount of moisture will affect how high the temperature goes and how long. The heating is really mold using available sugars in the hay. If the heat is high enough (above 115 degrees F) or extended, the TDN content will be reduced. If the temperature is high enough (130-140 degrees F) protein availability can be reduced. A target would be to bale under 20 percent moisture with 15 percent moisture close to ideal.

Hay production is costly, time consuming enterprise. It's important for livestock producers to focus on harvesting as many nutrients as possible, rather than weight or volume. Hay production is costly, time consuming–make the most of it by making good quality hay.

Avoiding ants, carpenter bees

GOING GREEN In the Bluegrass

Amanda Wheeler
Eco-Columnist

When a spider shows up inside, many people's first reaction is to kill it. I like to rescue spiders that I find by transporting them outside, where they won't bother me and there are more insects for them to eat.

I'm that way with a lot of animals — my default is to let animals live as they do naturally and give them their space. But I make exceptions for pests that invade my house and pose threats or create problems, such as carpenter bees or ants.

I have heard many people talking this year about ants invading their homes. Recently, I discovered a few ants in my house and knew I had to take action before they started multiplying.

I did lots of research and found several natural ways to deter and get rid of ants.

What I learned is that prevention is very important. The first step to preventing ants is pretty obvious: keep everything clean.

This doesn't mean you have to spend all your free time scrubbing your floors with a toothbrush. All it really takes is vacuuming regularly, cleaning your dirty dishes and handling spills as soon as they occur.

Even if you keep your house clean, you can still wind up with some ant visitors. There are several natural ways to deter them. Ants actually lead each other around with chemical trails they leave behind them. Once a couple ants wander into your house, their trails can be followed by a whole bunch of others, so it's important to mess up their lines. If the other ants cannot detect where the lines are, they cannot follow them.

You can erase ants' scent trails with lemon juice or a solution of equal parts water and vinegar.

Ants are also supposed to dislike ground cinnamon and peppermint oil. If you locate a spot where ants are coming into your house, you can try using those products to lay down protective borders the ants may not want to cross.

For more remedies for ant problems, you can visit the Mother Nature Network website http://bit.ly/1bR1xSE.

Carpenter bees seem to be another big problem this year. I have seen many signs along roadways recently advertising for "wood bee traps."

I've seen lots of carpenter bees around and have heard of them attacking people's homes. We had carpenter bees attempt to make a home in our porch last year and I saw a couple buzzing around again this year.

The important thing to remember about carpenter bees is that if you have them, you cannot see all of the damage — almost all of it is internal. Carpenter bees drill perfectly circular holes into exposed wood and then continue tunneling inside the wood.

As I said earlier, I do not like to kill wild animals. But in the case of carpenter bees, not getting rid of them will allow them to do serious damage to the infrastructure of your home.

To stop wood bees, you'll probably need to use some wood-bee killer. Bug-killing chemicals can be dangerous and not good for the environment, especially if they get into water sources. Once you have removed carpenter bees, you should make sure they don't come back. This will make things easier on you in the future and prevent you from having to kill more bees, since they'll opt to make their homes somewhere else.

It's important to plug old carpenter-bee holes, because otherwise, they can be reused by bees in the future. You can also stain or paint the wood to deter the bees from making your wood their home. Almond, citrus and tea tree oils are good options for spraying in or near holes because carpenter bees will avoid these scents.

UC recognizes Hutton Scholars

On Saturday, May 9, University of the Cumberlands (UC) recognized 43 undergraduate students who were named Hutton Scholars during the annual commencement ceremony in the O. Wayne Rollins Center. The Hutton Leadership and Community Service Program is a four-phase program providing leadership training and community service opportunities for the UC students.

Local students recognized were Courtney Hixson of Kings Mountain, Timothy Smith of Keavy and Jessica Upchurch of Stanford.

The requirement for graduation includes the completion of the UC insights program during the first semester of enrollment, the successful completion of the leadership seminar, and a minimum of 40 hours of community service following the seminar.

Students participating in the optional fourth phase of community service, performing a minimum of 200 hours of community service, are then named Hutton Scholars.

The class of 2015 contributed a total of 25,705 hours of service to their communities. The Corporation for National and Community Service values volunteer work at $20.85 per hour, making the UC total $535,950.00.

Skills USA members compete at state level

Skills USA competitions at the State level have kicked off again for 2015.

Skills USA members, Ben Hull, Austin Mullins, Mickey Puumala, Christine Hebrock, Alize Pelley, Coleby Elliott, and Brandon Edwards, participated in state competitions the week of April 22 through April 25 at the Crowne Plaza in Louisville.

Brandon Edwards competed in PC Maintenance and achieved third place. Ben Hull and Austin Mullins competed in Mechatronics and achieved first place. Mickey Puumala, Chrstine Hebrock and Coleby Elliott the Automated Manufacturing team of three, working with Computerized Aided Drafting, Computerized Automated Manufacturing, and Computerized Numerical Control, (CAD, CAM, CNC) achieved second place.

Austin Mullins said that his favorite part of state competitions was being recognized for winning his competition. Ben Hull and Austin Mullins, were asked what their expectations of state were, they said simply "that they wanted to do their best and do well under pressure." The automated team of Christine Hebrock, Mickey Puumala and Coleby Elliott said they learned they needed to stay calm and not over think the task at hand. Brandon Edwards said his favorite part of competitions was the competitive atmosphere as a whole.

Upchurch named to Dean's List

Kayla Upchurch of Stanford, qualified for the Spring 2015 Dean's List at Belmont University. Eligibility is based on a minimum course load of 12 hours and a quality grade point average of 3.5 with no grade below a C.

Approximately 30 percent of Belmont's 7,300 students qualified for the Spring 2015 Dean's List. Belmont Provost Dr. Thomas Burns said, "This achievement for the fall semester indicates that these students have placed a high priority on their work at Belmont and have invested time and energy in their studies. It is our strong belief that consistent application in this manner will reap great benefits, which will equip them for a lifetime of learning and growing."
